Anglican Prayer Beads

Sunday, October 2, 11:00 AM

On Sunday, October 2nd, Eunice Barton will hold a workshop for those interested in making Anglican Prayer beads. A sign-up sheet is on the table in the back of the church to determine how many bead kits we will need. Anglican prayer beads, also known as the Anglican rosary or Anglican chaplet, are a loop of strung beads used chiefly by Anglicans in the Anglican Communion. Anglican prayer beads were developed in the latter part of the 20th century within the Episcopal Diocese of Texas and this Anglican devotion has spread to other Christian denominations, including Lutherans, Methodists, the Reformed, and others, thus giving rise to the term Christian prayer beads. Anglican prayer bead sets consist of thirty-three beads divided into groups. There are four groups consisting of seven beads with additional separate and larger beads separating the groups. The number thirty-three signifies the number of years that Christ lived on the Earth, while the number seven signifies wholeness or completion in the faith, the days of creation, and the seasons of the Church year. Even if you are not interested in making prayer beads, all are invited to stay for coffee and conversation. Hope you will join us!
